2015 graduates showcase artist talents at Inveresk

Art graduates of 2015 will showcase their talents when the University's Tasmanian College of the Arts (TCOTA) hosts the annual Grad Show at Inveresk tonight (Friday, 20 November).

Contemporary art and design practice will be explored through the College's various study mediums including painting, sculpture, photography, printmaking, video, design and drawing.

The College's Academy Gallery at Inveresk will host the week-long exhibition.

"This type of exhibition provides a window to artists of our future in our State," Senior Lecturer and Director of the Academy Gallery Malcom Bywaters said.

"It allows the College and wider community to come together and celebrate the achievements and successes of the student cohort who will graduate in December."

Now in its 15th year, the Grad Show exhibition is one of the highlights of the visual arts calendar, and an important opportunity for the State's emerging creative talents to exhibit their works publicly.

The exhibition at the Academy Gallery will be officially opened tonight at 5.30pm by Professor Kit Wise, Head of School at the Tasmanian College of the Arts.

The exhibit is open to the public on weekdays (9am-5pm) and runs until November 27.
