Academic efforts rewarded in annual Arts prize ceremony

FOUR North-West coast Arts students were recognised for their academic achievements in a special presentation ceremony held today at the UTAS Cradle Coast campus.

University of Tasmania Dean of Arts, Professor Jan Pakulski, presented awards to students in the annual Faculty of Arts Cradle Coast Prize ceremony.

“The awards recognise all the hard work students put into their studies,” Professor Pakulski said.

“Their outstanding marks are a result of their dedication and commitment to academic excellence.”

The prizes celebrate the outstanding achievements of students who completed their first year of study at the Cradle Coast in a degree in the Faculty of Arts in 2007, recognising the best first-year students in Aboriginal Studies, English, History, Sociology, Government and Philosophy.

One student is also awarded best overall performance by a first-year student.

Students were joined by family and UTAS staff for the awards ceremony at the UTAS Cradle Coast campus.

The Faculty of Arts Cradle Coast Prize winners are:

- Caitlin Crack – Best First Year Student, First Year Aboriginal Studies and First Year English
- Anthea Carins – First Year History and First Year Sociology
- Michelle Lennon – First Year Government
- Jayne Taylor – First Year Philosophy
