Sustainable Tamar region group holds second forum

Organisers of the 2009 Creating a Sustainable Future forum have invited the public to attend a follow-up forum at the University of Tasmania in Launceston on Saturday 27 February.

Committee member Ian Sauer wants people attending to help consider new ways of community collaboration on advancing sustainable enterprise, lifestyles and resource management - from everyday domestic practices to large-scale regional strategies.

“Last year we formed working groups on transport, community education, the role of government, energy, water, waste and land use,” he said.

“Those groups will present reports at Saturday’s forum to gain feedback before discussing future actions.”

The forum facilitator will be Dr Tony McCall from the UTAS School of Government.
